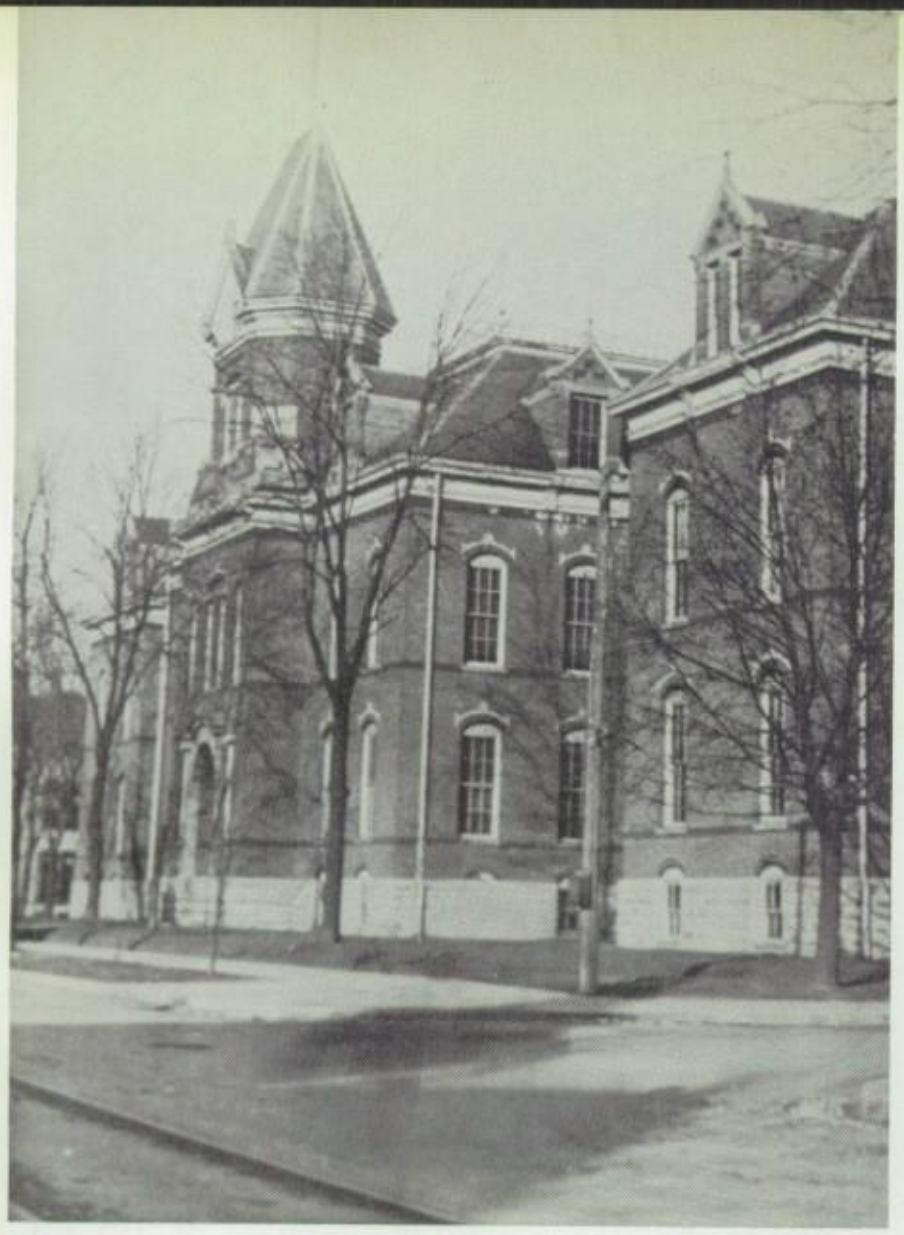
SHORTRIDGE HIGH SCHOOL

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA

1964



Before moving to its present building, Shortridge occupied this ancient-looking structure on Pennsylvania Street between Michigan and North Streets.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF PROGRESS

A yearbook preserves within its pages the joys, the disappointments, the excitement, and the drudgery of one year of school; but in this Annual we see the year just passed in a different light, with a broader perspective. We look back not only upon one year, but upon a full century. By catching the highlights of Shortridge's one hundred years, we hope to make this year even more meaningful.

Much remodeling has been done to change this cafeteria of 1935 to the one of today.

With the construction of a new building on the north side, the high school could not accommodate the students from the south side of town. Thus a second high school, Emmerich Manual Training School, was built in the 1890's, and the former Indianapolis High School, no longer the only one of the city, was renamed Shortridge in 1897.

The first principal of Indianapolis High School, William A. Bell, served from 1864 to '65, and then again from 1866 to '71. The first to be principal of Shortridge proper was George W. Hufford.

George Buck will long be remembered as the John Marshall of Shortridge principals, serving from 1910 to 1941. Currently holding this position is Robert J. Shultz, Shortridge's thirteenth executive since 1864.

As the past hundred years have gone by, there has been built at Shortridge a tradition that is cherished by each succeeding generation. The justified pride in this tradition is the enriched product of passing decades.

But never resting only on its past, Shortridge continues to season tradition with initiative while melting every ingredient of society into one firm alloy. So with a brief backward glance upon the past hundred years, Shortridge stands ready to enact Century Number Two.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF PROGRESS

Shortridge High School is more than an institution of secondary education. It is a community. Like any community that is one hundred years old, Shortridge has tradition to cherish, accomplishments to boast, a past to reflect upon, a present to undergo, and a future yet to enact. There is no more appropriate time than the Centennial Year for praise, reflection, or accomplishment.

From the war-torn years of the 1860's was born the high school with which Shortridge claims identity. By the efforts of Abraham C. Shortridge, superintendent of Indianapolis Schools, the new public Indianapolis High School was set up in 1864 in Ward Building No. 1 at the corner of Vermont and New Jersey Streets.

Passing years and increasing enrollment necessitated a constant relocation of quarters. In 1867 the old Second Presbyterian Church at the northeast corner of Market Street and the Circle provided a roof for Indianapolis High School. The next site, condemned in 1884, was the old Baptist Female Seminary at Pennsylvania and Michigan Streets. To replace the razed fire trap, a new red brick building was erected there, housing Shortridge until 1929, when it settled at its present location at 34th and Meridian Streets.

With 30,000 volumes to its credit, the Charity Dye Library is the largest high school library in Indiana.

Over the past one hundred years Shortridge through the achievements of its students and alumni has established a record of educational distinction that is difficult to equal. This record is still being extended today. In the spring of 1963 Shortridge was among twenty-five high schools in the United States cited in a prominent national magazine as having a reputation for excellence.

This excellence is reflected by the nearly one hundred students from the last eight senior classes who have been recognized as semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Competition. Research has shown that Shortridge now ranks first in the state of Indiana in the number of its graduates who earn Ph.D's. In all phases of its academic life, Shortridge refuses to rest on the laurels of one hundred years. Every field has produced and is continuing to produce outstanding scholars as is demonstrated by the achievements of many of the individual departments.

For example, in the annual, creative writing competition sponsored by the National Council of Teachers of English, Shortridge has had five winners and four runners-up in just the past five years. Student authors have had equal success on a national basis in the "Atlantic Monthly" contests. In addition to these special activities the department offers the college-bound student more than twelve semesters of English.

State-wide competition in mathematics has brought Shortridge math students more than thirty medals in the years 1958 through 1963. These medals are presented to those high school mathematicians who rank highest in state tests covering algebra, geometry, and advanced mathematics. Shortridge has had similar success in state chemistry competition. Each year the American Chemical Society awards scholarships to the chemistry students who place first, second, and third in a state examination. In the four years the contest has existed, entrants from Shortridge have won six of the twelve scholarships awarded and have received more than one quarter of the honorable mentions. In addition, the Society has presented the Shortridge chemistry department with the special teachers' award in recognition of the consistently fine showing of its students.

Twelve Shortridge students of foreign languages, after proving their proficiency in competitive examinations, have been sent to France, Germany, and Mexico under a new program instituted two years ago by Indiana University. Shortridge is one of a few high schools in the state which sent students to each of the three countries. On returning from summer study, these seniors have been helpful to their teachers and classmates by sharing the knowledge of both language and culture which they have gained.

In addition to this excellence in academic studies, Shortridge stands out as a center of education in the arts. Annually the A Cappella Choir presents the Choral Classic, an ambitious program of masterpieces by great composers. Professional and school forces are united for outstanding performances bringing national admiration to the school. The music department also produces outstanding marching and concert bands and a fine orchestra. In the past ten years these three organizations have won twenty first place awards in state music contests. The art department regularly distinguishes itself through recognition of its students' work in the National Scholastic Art Contest.

Perhaps the most eloquent testimony to the dynamic character of Shortridge as an educational institution is confidence placed in Shortridge graduates. In just the past two years, more than two hundred thousand dollars in scholarships have been awarded to Shortridge seniors. Shortridgers have consistently demonstrated a willingness and a desire to achieve to the full extent of their abilities by the great honors they have brought their school during its one hundred year history.

Back in 1929 Shortridge's center court was this barren patch of dirt, but it soon sprang to life under the hands of volunteer workers like these.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF PARTICIPATION

To the students, past and present . . .

As regularly as waves beating on the shore, a new wave of freshmen enters Shortridge High School every fall. This year marks the one hundredth wave that has pounded on the shores of Shortridge. The shoreline that greeted this year's wave differs greatly from that first shoreline. The building is not the same as that first one, nor are the books or teachers the same. A few traits, though, are possessed by the shoreline of 1864 and that shoreline of today which identify them as Shortridge. They are school spirit and academic excellence.

The high school years are the formulative years. The insignificant drops which make up the incoming wave leave Shortridge High School as individuals who are prepared to embark on the sometimes stormy sea of life.

Craning to use her crude microscope in 1900, this student could not possibly have realized the vast improvements which would evolve at Shortridge between that day and this.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF ACADEMICS

To place academics at the top and keep it there for one hundred years is an accomplishment of which Shortridge deserves to be proud. The policy of setting nothing but the highest standards for the students to meet was established by the first teachers at Shortridge. They held the first graduating class back one year because they felt the students did not meet the academic requirements. Still practiced today, these exacting standards have been instrumental in shaping capable individuals out of Shortridge graduates.

All interests and measures of capability must be considered for the creation of an institution which inspires further pursuance of knowledge, which trains responsible citizens, and which bestows and leaves upon its graduates a respect for the importance of learning. Shortridge, where scholarship comes first, does this.

MUSIC, ART DEPARTMENTS NOTED FOR WORK

Shortridge's music and art departments have long been noted for their outstanding work. Besides learning the fundamentals of art and music, students have an opportunity to display their talents and deepen their appreciation of the arts.

The first instrumental group at Shortridge was the Mandolin Club, organized in 1896. It is from this modest beginning that the Shortridge bands and orchestra developed. These music groups have established excellent records in state competition. The orchestra often plays for school functions and the marching band is a familiar sight at most Shortridge football games and many parades. The annual highpoint of the concert band season is the Sweaterman's Concert, usually featuring a noted guest soloist.

The music department has had great success with the Choral Classic, an annual project of the A Cappella Choir. In addition to the choir, the choral department also features the Madrigal Singers, the Girls Ensemble, and the Music Men, all of which make frequent public appearances.

Besides this excellent training in the performing arts, Shortridge also offers outstanding opportunities in the graphic arts. The art department strives to help each student realize the full potential of his talents. All students gain an acquaintance with the work of the art department through the displays in the Roda Selleck Memorial Art Gallery. Here are presented copies of great masterpieces, works of alumni, recent works by students, and often exhibits loaned by art institutions.

These wide-ranging functions of both the art and music departments play a vital role in the cultural life of the school.

To help keep things swinging, Ed Pipkin and Greg Nicely join in on the chorus of a number by the Shortridge dance band.

NATIONAL ENGLISH

This year Shortridge was among the one hundred ten schools in the nation selected for the National Study of High School English Programs, sponsored by the National Council of Teachers of English. By comparing the strong characteristics of highly regarded English departments, the research staff will be able to list the practices which promote success in English.

Several distinguishing aspects have made the Shortridge English department worthy of this national acclaim. The excellent college lecture program offered to English students gives them a chance to broaden their literary backgrounds. To acquaint students even further with the world's great literature, the English office is filled with paperback classics. Departmental grammar tests are given the second semesters of the freshman through junior years. Creative writing is encouraged by the Spring Sampler, the English department's own publication of selected compositions by Shortridge students.

Another attribute of the department is its broad curriculum. It includes three years of basic grammar with an introduction to American and world literature. Then English lit and composition are thoroughly explored and practiced in the senior year. A special advanced literature course offers college preparation for seniors. Dramatics, publications, and oratorical activities find participants from the popular public speaking and journalism classes.

The English department's supply of pocketbooks helps Kay Hanna, Rita Day, and Doug Demlow to broaden their outside reading.

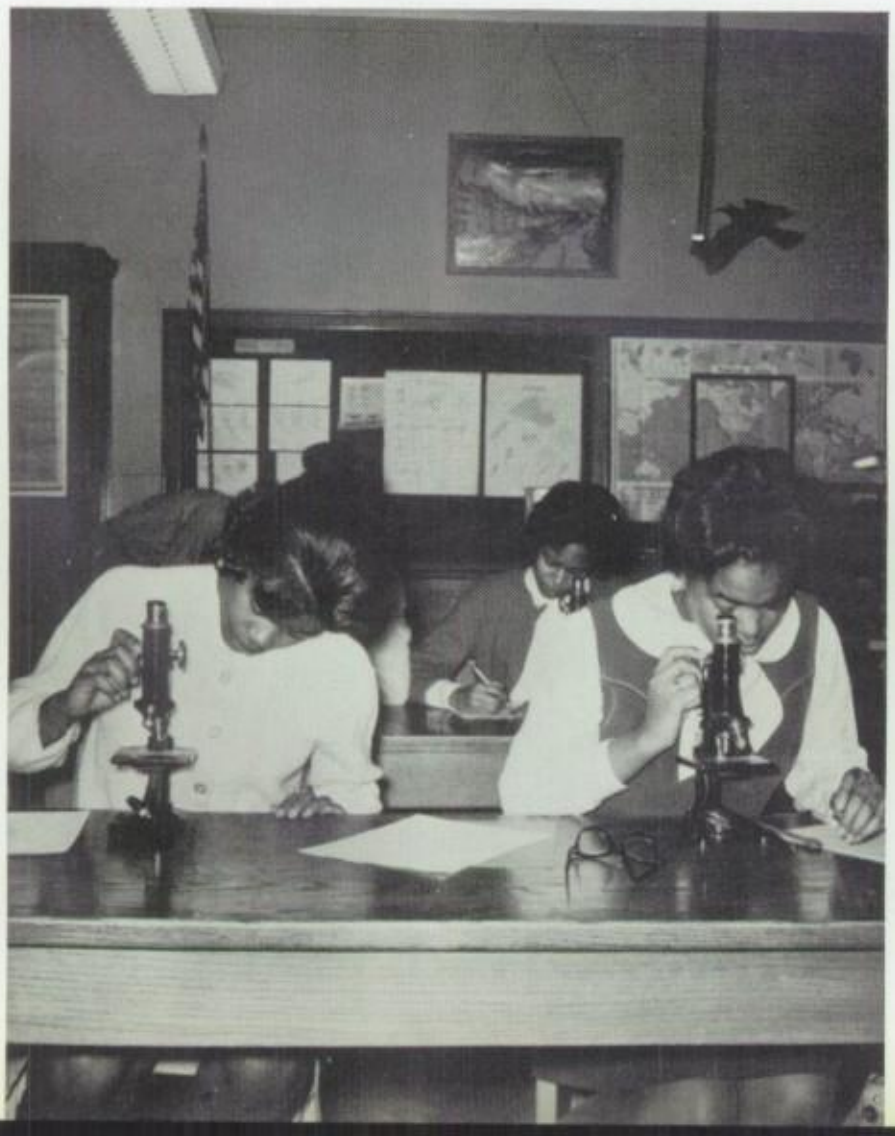
SCIENCE DEPARTMENT OFFERS STUDENTS A



The Shortridge science department offers a broad, basic science education. The curriculum of the department is basically composed of courses in physical science, biology, chemistry, and physics. Students with special interests may take courses in botany, zoology, physiology, and astronomy.

Shortridge science students learn more than just the material in the textbooks. Through the study of science, they learn to approach situations objectively. This scientific method of solving problems can be applied in all areas of life. Science helps the individual to think clearly and to be open-minded.

The amount of scientific knowledge in the last one hundred years greatly exceeds the amount accumulated in the previous two thousand years. Separation of the twentieth century from all other centuries is partially the result of applied science. In our modern world of automobiles, airplanes, computers, television, and a million other inventions, a basic science education increases man's appreciation of the era in which he lives.

BUSINESS COURSES MEET PUPILS' NEEDS

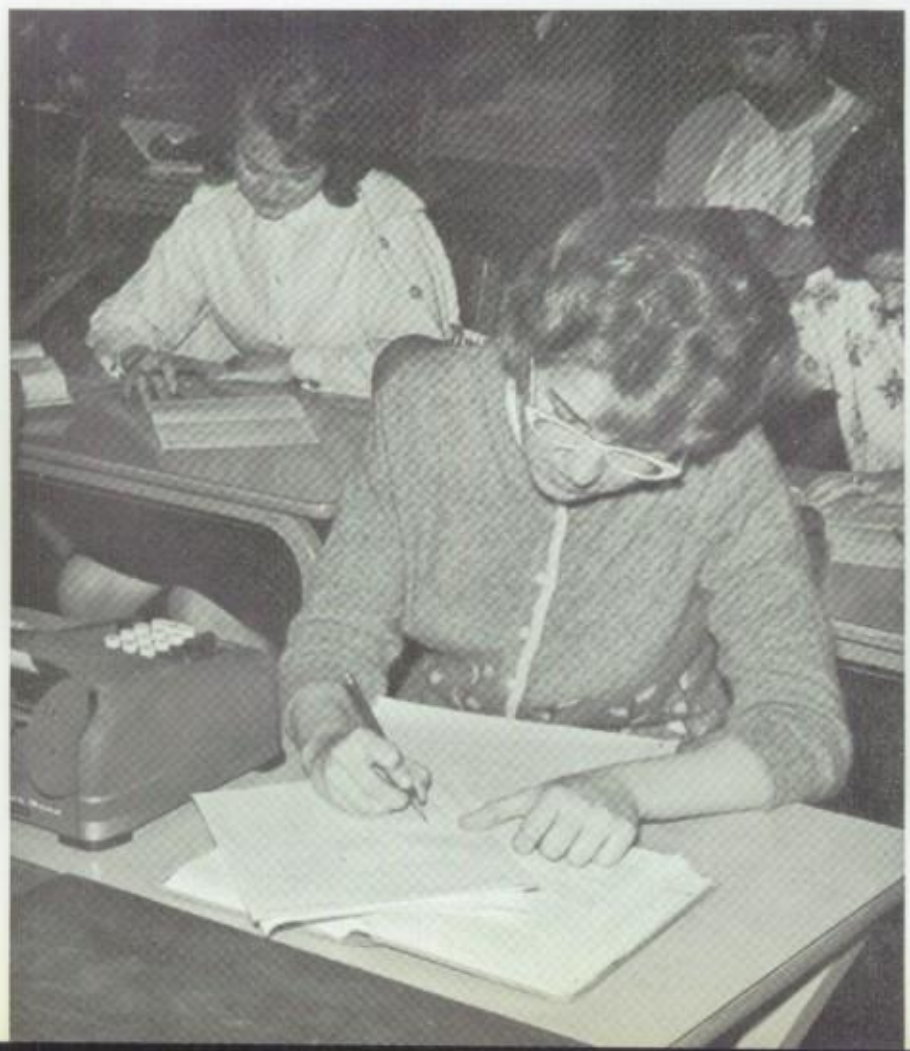
Bookkeeping teaches Judy Blackwell how to use an adding machine to shorten her working time and increase her accuracy.



Shortridge's mathematics department offers a wide variety of courses designed to meet the needs of every student. The eleven semesters of mathematics given by the department range from the fundamentals of general math through the more difficult work of five semesters of algebra, a year of geometry, trigonometry, and finally the intricacies of calculus and analytical geometry. This department provides practical knowledge in the field as well as an excellent basis for a future career in mathematics.

Also offering valuable knowledge and career training is the business education department. This department gives a comprehensive set of courses which deals with all phases of business including law, mathematics, English, specialized skills, and machine operation. The curriculum covers everything from secretarial training to the study of the problems of large corporations. The business courses have an immediate, tangible value, but at the same time they represent long-range career training. These courses are valuable to every student because of the necessary skills they teach.

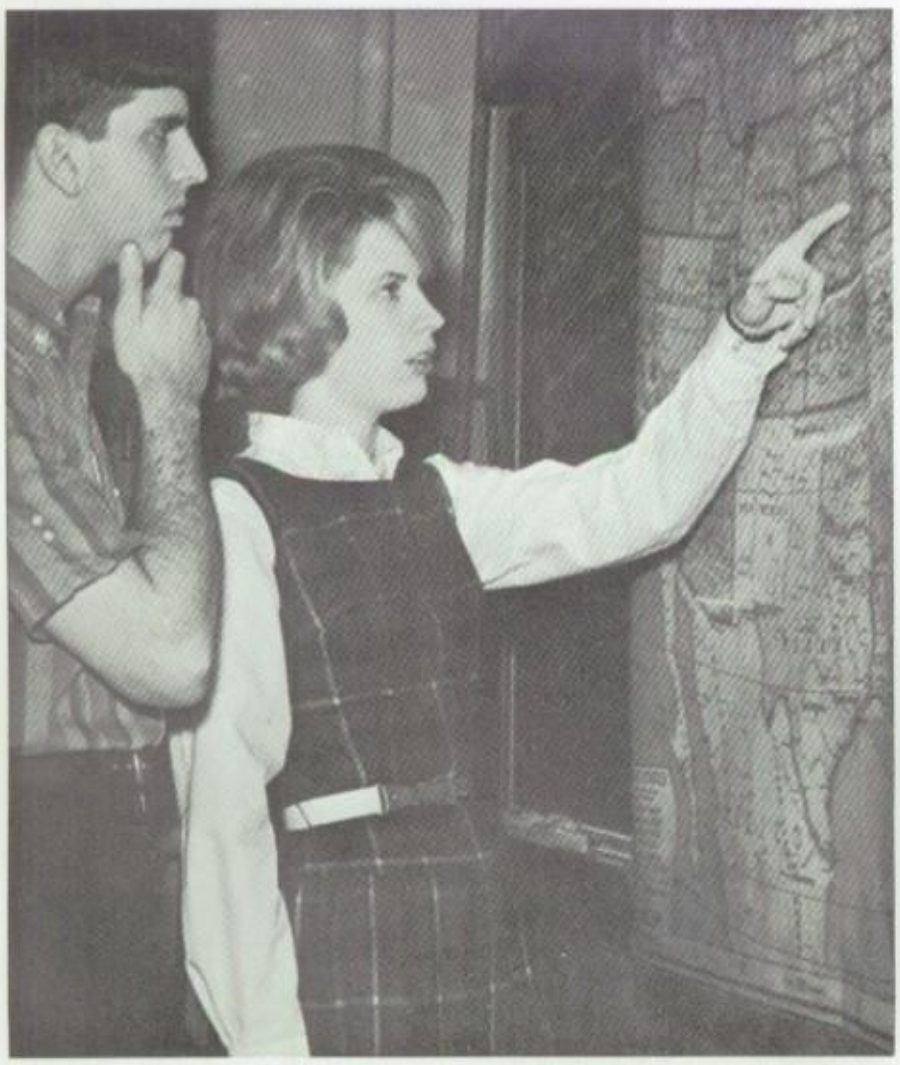
When American history classes make the customary trip to the home of Benjamin Harrison, 23rd President of the U. S., they find that history actually comes alive.



Acquiring knowledge of history inspires and develops national pride. Through the study of history, both past and in the making, Shortridge students are able to see for themselves the relationship between yesterday and today.

The history department is able to boast the oldest club at Shortridge, the Senate, organized in 1887 by Miss Laura Donnan. The Senate, like the History Club, provides students with a broad range of activities in studying history.

In the ancient history and world history classes students learn of civilization's beginnings and are given a background for other history classes. Continuing their study, pupils in U. S. history concentrate on the study of the United States' development. This course is followed by the study of government and economics in the senior year. Elective courses, such as Indiana history, English history, and international relations, are offered to those students who have special interest. In all classes such activities as polls on current controversies, mock elections, and field trips to historical places help history students visualize the importance of history in their daily lives.

FIVE LANGUAGES OFFERED BY ACTIVE DEPT.

In few schools are foreign languages given as much emphasis and importance as they are at Shortridge. Because of a widened curriculum, improved facilities, and increased interest in language, more students than ever before are acquiring proficiency in both speaking and writing a foreign language.

French, German, Greek, Latin, and Spanish are all offered at Shortridge, giving many students the chance to study two or even three languages. The department tries to develop in every pupil a fluency in both written and oral comprehension and usage. To aid this goal, modern equipment in the language laboratory makes learning as pleasant as possible. The success of the department is indicated by the large number of its students who have qualified to visit foreign countries under the language program of Indiana University.

One of the interesting sidelights in the study of any language is a knowledge of foreign cultures and people. Shortridgers show their enthusiasm for this study through the high annual enrollment in the language courses and through their support of the five language clubs.

FUTURE CAREERS ARE FOUND IN SHOP, HOME EC.

Training given to girls in the Home Economics department's clothing classes is both valuable and personally satisfying.

Foods is a course which provides tasty benefits as Marjorie Neely discovers.

The physical education, home economics, and shop departments offer a variety of courses so that students can derive enjoyment from developing their abilities and discovering the possibilities of future careers. In gym classes, sports and gymnastics provide practice in physical skills as well as the fun of participation. Health and safety classes acquaint students with the human body and teach them how to understand and care for it. Another course established for the benefit of the students is driver education. Each year new drivers are turned out, confident of their ability behind the wheel. Besides developing everyday skills in shop work, classes in metal and wood working prepare many interested students for vocations. Popular for the same reason, the home economics classes offer both cooking and sewing to girls who want to prepare themselves to be homemakers and to those who will seek careers in the field of home economy.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS
To give proper first aid
1 Plan your action.
2 Gather needed material.
3 Instruct helpers.
4 Carry out procedures.
Sequence of first aid
1 Check for and give first aid to "hurry" cases.
2 Keep injured person lying down and guard against chilling.
3 Give first aid for other injuries.
Some do's
1 Be calm and deliberate—take time.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF ACTIVITIES

Although the prime objective of Shortridge is to provide educational opportunities for its students, education is not the only objective. One must understand his fellow man, and just as important, must be able to work with his fellow man. Extracurricular activities give the student opportunities to work side by side with his fellow students, and at the same time, to further his education. They not only enrich the pupil's life culturally, but also enable him to direct his energy into constructive channels.

In 1880 the only extracurricular program at Shortridge was the Philomathean, a debate and literary club. The Shortridge extracurricular program has come a long way since then. Over the years the program has been expanded and incorporated into the student's school life to a position of great prominence. Just as every gear has its place in a complex machine, so does every pupil have his place in Shortridge's diversified extracurricular program.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Eugenia B. Hayden and Thomas Payne, the Student Board of 1963-64 strove to represent the ideas and attitudes of the student body through its numerous and diverse activities.

The American Field Service, at Shortridge an organization sponsored by the Student Board, brought Hans Schaefer from Germany to Shortridge for the school term and sent Carol Schuster to Brazil for the summer of 1963. The second annual Shortridge Day, also sponsored by the Student Board, was geared to the commemoration of Shortridge's Centennial Year. In the spring students voted for the most popular senior boy and girl at Student Board's annual Bluebelle-Uglyman Dance.

Homecoming, complete with queen, parade, game, and dance, has recently grown to a full-scale production at Shortridge under Student Board leadership. The parade showed evidence of long preparation, and the dance was a memorable climax to Homecoming.

Packing books for the Nigerian library campaign, Student Board president Frank Phillippi and Kathy Cole, secretary, still manage to look into the camera.

Ranking second in the state from the previous year, the Shortridge Key Club, sponsored by Jerry Steiner, applied itself during the year toward the goal of first position. This year Shortridge's club was in charge of publishing the Inkey, the state-wide publication of Key Club in Indiana.

Key Club is a service organization composed of boys who display good scholarship, citizenship, and leadership ability. New members are chosen each year by the existing members of the club after a thorough discussion of each candidate.

By helping to maintain Julius Field, one service project, Key Club members saved the athletic department considerable time and expense. The club kept posted a large sign in front of the school announcing future events at Shortridge. Passing out posters for the Tuberculosis Association and arranging for an auditorium were among other projects of the club. At the Hard Times Dance, organized by Key Club, couples departed from the usual formality of a dance by dressing as poorly as possible, with a prize given to the worst dressed.

Key Club president Don Handy searches for "eatermen's" while vice president Jack Zeigler starts the word "Concert." The sign board in front of school is a Key Club project.

Girls' League members serve as the elected representatives of Shortridge girls in discussing matters of special interest to girls and in aiding their sponsor, Mrs. Eugenia Hayden, in her duties as dean of girls. The girls enjoyed several picnics this year and attempted to serve the school by helping at various school functions.

The True Blue Club, regarded as the Girls' League cabinet, is composed of girls who work in the Dean of Girls office as messengers and in any other capacity they can.

The Y-Teens, a part of the Y.W.C.A., is open to all girls interested in recreation and companionship through service. Sponsored by Mrs. Gladys Brewer and Miss Phyllis Warrick, the girls held bi-monthly meetings at the Y.W.C.A. and sponsored parties and projects at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Elected by their classmates, members of the Junior Red Cross take part in such projects as packing boxes for children overseas and the distribution of United Fund posters. The Shortridge chapter, sponsored by Mrs. Margaret Miller, was active through these service projects as well as the intra-school Red Cross fund drive.

The oldest club at Shortridge, the Shortridge Senate, was temporarily disbanded on January 6, 1964. Miss Sidney Pratt, the sponsor of the Senate, announced that the club would be replaced by the Legislative Discussion Club for at least one semester. Reactivation of the Senate is planned as soon as the proper groundwork has been laid through the discussion group. The new club is much the same as the Senate but differs in its organization. The Senate, seventy-seven years old this year, sent six delegates to the Purdue Legislative Assembly in December.

Similar to the Senate is the Shortridge Debate Club. Miss Kathleen Shelley is the sponsor and coach of the club's debate team. She guides the members in learning to think "on their feet" as well as to prepare logical arguments. The Debate Club team has had a full schedule of debates this year, both in dual meets and in tournaments.

SECOND ROW: Margaret Carper, Janet Tower, Jenny Rosenbaum, Kathy Bloom, Estella Mills, Cheryl Price. THIRD ROW: Bob Evans, Drew Anderson, Don Handy, John Welsh, Ed Worth.

Three important supplements to the curriculum of the English department are the Great Books, the Fiction, and the Poetry Clubs. This year the Great Books Club was opened to freshman and sophomores, with the result that membership increased considerably. With sponsors Miss Kathleen Shelley and Miss Sidney Pratt acting as moderators, the club discussed one of its reading selections, Aldous Huxley's Brave New World, on local television.

The Fiction Club, sponsored by Miss Ruth Armstrong, is composed of students who have demonstrated their skills as writers and who wish to increase their knowledge of fiction writing. One of the traditional projects of the club is the contribution of members' writings to the Christmas Echo. This year the club was well represented in both the Christmas Echo and the spring anthology, The Spring Sampler.

For students interested in poetry, Mrs. Marie Knighton sponsors the Poetry Club, which meets to discuss and read poetry.

QUILL AND SCROLL GROUP GROWS FROM THREE

Starting the school year with only three members, Quill and Scroll's Shortridge chapter soon expanded with the initiation of new members. The rigid requirements for membership in this national journalistic honor society have always been strictly interpreted at Shortridge. This year with Mrs. Sally Earl, sponsor, the members faced the difficult duty of defending the title of second in the nation earned by the Shortridge Quill and Scroll of the previous year for activities and scrapbook.

The mums that Quill and Scroll sold for Homecoming were a sellout, greatly aiding the treasury. At the fall initiation the guest speaker was Mrs. Gertrude Winders, an alumna of Shortridge who now writes children's books. Other activities of the year emphasized sound practices of journalism. An elaborate scrapbook of the year's activities, kept by the historian, was later submitted for national judging. Every member in the chapter also was an official Teen Star correspondent.

Two Quill and Scroll members, Andy Gaus and Olivia Swan, sort through pictures for a brochure about Shortridge that the Quill and Scroll is writing.

WIAN BROADCASTS FROM THIRD FLOOR OF SHS

WIAN-FM, the Indianapolis Public School's radio station, has its studios and transmitter on the third floor of Shortridge. Broadcasting programs for use in the schools, WIAN operates at a powerful ten thousand watts; so powerful, in fact, that it is often received on the language lab earphones or on movie projectors on the third floor. In addition to the regular programs of its daily schedule, this year the station received authorization to remain on the air every Friday night to broadcast programs of greater interest to the general public. Under the direction of Program Director Arthur Van Allen, WIAN plays an important part in Shortridge life by broadcasting all of the Blue Devils' home football and basketball games and many of the school's special music programs. Shortridge's radio station is one of its best public relations facilities.

Engineering from behind a massive control board and banks of tape recorders and turntables, Mack Thomas logs another program broadcast by WIAN, the radio station of the public schools.

ECHO TRADITION BELIES MUSTY IMAGE, GROWS

Mrs. Sally Earl, Echo Sponsor, looks over photos for Wednesday's paper.

The word "tradition" often implies something musty with age, but one of Shortridge's oldest traditions is also one of its most dynamic and valuable. The Shortridge Daily Echo, founded in 1898, was the first high school daily newspaper in the world and is now one of four in existence. This year the Echo instituted one of its greatest changes in recent years, the addition of a double page of photographs in every Wednesday Echo. With this new feature the Echo not only provided the student body with information through the written word but also reflected the life of the school in pictures. Mrs. Sally Earl, the paper's new sponsor, worked with Miss Jeanette Grubb and the five daily staffs to publish the Echo for its sixty-sixth year. The paper keeps the school in touch with the community by sending reports of school activities to the city newspapers. The Echo also gives a great number of young journalists a chance to try their skills both at reporting and creative writing. With the support of the student body the Echo continues to be one of Shortridge's greatest assets.

ANNUAL STAFF WORKS TO

The Annual is the culmination of over a year's work. From the time she was elected editor in the spring of 1963, Patsy Towe worked toward the finished book. Beginning work in her junior year, she appointed staffs and began formulating ideas. During the summer Miss Cunningham, the new Annual sponsor, and Patsy attended the Indiana University yearbook workshop where they learned about

HISTORY CLUB MIXES KNOWLEDGE, PLEASURE

Members of the Shortridge History Club broaden their knowledge of history and have an enjoyable time doing it. The club offers extracurricular opportunities to the student that cannot be made available in the classroom. This year speakers such as Dr. Waller, head of the Butler University History Department, spoke before the club. Other activities of the club for 1963-1964 included hosting an auditorium for the school, a field trip to the Clowes art exhibit, a Halloween party called the Bridey Murphy Party to which each member wore a costume depicting a famous character in history, and a Christmas party.

A student must have a B average in social studies to be eligible for membership. The club now boasts forty members. Sponsor of the History Club is Mrs. Elsie Howard.

THREE MATH CLUBS SERVE DIFFERENT LEVELS

Math students at Shortridge find three different mathematics clubs with requirements of graduated difficulty challenging them to qualify for membership. The Hi-Pi Club is open to any interested pupil enrolled in math below Geometry II. Guest speakers, lectures, and games introduce to the members a type of math apart from the classroom algebra and geometry.

To qualify for Math Club, the student must have a C average in math, be enrolled in Geometry II or above, and either write an entrance paper or be a transfer member from Hi-Pi. Besides having more advanced topics for its meetings, Math Club takes a trip each year to an outside business concern.

Members of Math Club who have a B+ average in math and an overall B average are qualified for Mu Alpha Theta, the national math honorary. Miss Ellen Ocker is sponsor of all three math clubs at Shortridge.

NATURALIST CLUB RANKS AMONG MOST ACTIVE

Among Shortridge's most active clubs, the Naturalist Club is also one of the most popular. Sponsored by Richard Wood, the club is composed of students who are interested in the natural sciences. The club organizes many field trips, usually to a state park. Trips this year included Turkey Run, Shades, McCormick's Creek, and Clifty Falls State Parks, as well as a trip to Sullivan's Cave and the annual spring trip to Willow Slough. The trips combine a scholarly study of the natural wonders found at the parks with fellowship and good fun. The great variety of wildlife at the parks enables the naturalists to study not only the basic biological sciences, botany and zoology, but also related sciences. Club members find that besides being educational, the trips serve as a valuable supplement to class work. By combining learning with fun, the Naturalist Club has attracted a large and enthusiastic membership.

STAMPS, BOOKS HAVE OWN INTEREST CLUBS

Collecting and trading stamps and coins can be exciting and in some cases profitable. Members of the Shortridge Stamp and Coin Club meet regularly to trade and auction stamps and coins. This year speakers came to club meetings to discuss the aspects of stamp collecting. Another feature at the meetings was films from the post office. Sponsor of the club is Miss Mildred Campbell.

Another club at Shortridge is the Library Club. This club, sponsored by Mrs. Betty Jacobs and Mrs. Esther Cavanagh, is helpful to pupils interested in careers as librarians. Pupils who work in the library compose the membership of the club. Every year the club takes part in the Hoosier Student Librarian's Association Convention held in the fall and the regional conference held in the spring.

Future Teachers of America helps high school pupils learn more about the teaching profession. The organization, sponsored by Miss Katharine Smith, holds meetings once a month, and at these meetings speakers discuss different aspects of the teaching profession. This year student teachers and cadet teachers participated in panel discussions to help acquaint members of the club with the problems a teacher must face.

Just as the FTA acquaints high school pupils with the world of teaching, the Future Business Leaders of America acquaints Shortridge pupils with the business world. This year members participated in a candy sale and took several field trips. At the monthly meetings members heard speeches by such Indianapolis business leaders as Kirby Whyte, vice president of the Indiana National Bank. Also, several movies were shown throughout the year.

THESPIANS, FOOTLIGHTS, STAGE CREW AID IN

Thespians Judy Ferris, Bob Spahr, and Gail Fork walk through a reading rehearsal for the All-School Play, "The Bad Seed."

On the stage and behind the curtain, the members of the Footlights Club, the Thespians, and the stage crew all work to keep the quality of Shortridge dramatic productions high. Membership in Footlights is open to all Shortridge students who have an interest in the workings of the theater. This year the group viewed demonstrations in make-up and had the opportunity to gain practical experience by working backstage before and during many Shortridge productions. Of the club's activities the most important is the annual Christmas play, produced solely by members of the Footlights Club. Footlights members attempt to become thoroughly acquainted with all phases of the theater, hoping to qualify for membership in Troupe 595, the Shortridge chapter of the National Thespian Society, by working 100 hours on dramatic productions. Both groups are sponsored by Philip Hirsch.

Working hand in hand with these two groups is the stage crew, under the sponsorship of Arthur Studebaker, director of stage productions. This group is the technical coordinator for every production on the stage, whether sponsored by the school, or by an outside group using the auditorium.

TWO ART CLUBS ENCOURAGE ARTISTIC ACTIVITY

The French word meaning "sketch" is used in the name of one of Shortridge's art clubs, the Croquis Club. Developing skills and deepening interests in artistic areas are the functions of the club. Sponsored by Miss Jane Messick, the Croquis Club offers art students an opportunity to further their knowledge of art outside of the usual classroom activities. Members of the club develop an active interest in various concepts of art through lectures and visits to current art exhibitions. Several times during the year the group met at the John Herron Art Museum, making use of the facilities there in their study of art.

Shortridge's other art club, the Docents Club, functions as a service organization. Docents members, guided by Charles Yeager, work to maintain the Roda Selleck Memorial Gallery by planning and hanging exhibits and publicizing the displays of art work done by students from Shortridge and other schools.

Climaxing months of earnest preparation with performances on March 6 and 7, the Class of 1965 presented its Junior Vaudeville with the emphasis upon quality and originality. Vaudeville Chairman Sharrel Pollard, Program Editor Cindy Fenton, and Junior Class Sponsor John Morgan can take official credit for the show's success. Philip Hirsch, dramatics director, headed the seven member faculty adviser committee.

Fourteen scarecrows began the show by announcing that they were "Off to See the Vaudeville." For the first act, "Egyptian Elusion," three professors working on an experiment found themselves back in Ancient Egypt, where they encountered troubling experiences. "High Sioux-ciety," Act 2, was the flashback story of an old white squaw telling young braves how she had been captured by the tribe and had stayed to become one of them.

"One Hundred Million Miracles," the third act, had an oriental setting, patterned after the Kabuki theater and a plot concerning the search for the most precious thing in the world. The beach was the scene for Act 4, "Nautical Nonsense," involving two romances that had a difficult time maturing.

HIGH REPUTATION

The many and varied music groups at Shortridge play a key role in maintaining the school's reputation of high standards and quality. This year from the rooms on the fourth floor came such musical perfomances as the Choral Classic, performed by the A Cappella Choir under the direction of Thomas Preble, and the Band Sweaterman's Concert.

Instructed by Miss Linda Eckard, students in Cadet Choir receive practice and drill in fundamentals as they strive to attain membership in Choral Club and Boys' Glee Club and, later, the Mixed Concert Choir. Most pupils in the choral department work to earn a position in the A Cappella Choir and perhaps membership in the Girls' Ensemble or Music Men, and Madrigals.

The instrumental department was reorganized this year with greater emphasis on training and performing experience. Alvin Jones, in his first year at Shortridge, led the Marching and Concert Bands through a year of half-time shows and concerts.

The Shortridge Orchestra, directed by John Medjeski, had one of its most productive years, performing before plays and similar presentations. For the first time the orchestra played a major part in several music auditoriums.

ROTC BOYS GAIN KNOWLEDGE OF MILITARY

One of Shortridge's most valuable and colorful organizations is the Reserve Officers Training Corps. Directed by Master Sergeant Thomas Dawson, the Corps provides Shortridge boys with an opportunity to learn the traditions, regulations, and functions of military service. Known to everyone by their familiar military uniforms, the ROTC members serve as well as learn. They render important services by aiding in the organization and direction of many school functions, such as the Junior Vaudeville, the Family Frolic, and school athletic contests. The ROTC also raises the flag every morning before school begins and lowers it each afternoon. The whole school shares in one of the major events of the ROTC's year, the Federal Inspection in the spring. This annual event is an occasion for the units of the Shortridge corps to demonstrate their skills. The cadets are scored on their precision in military drill and upon their general appearance. The social event which fills out the ROTC's year is the Military Ball, held this year in March.

Showing the familiar Shortridge spirit in rather unfamiliar uniforms, these three Blue Devils charged down the gridiron with the team of 1942.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF SPORTS

Sports are a vital part of most teenagers' lives. They not only help to create and maintain school spirit, but they also provide recreation for both spectator and participants.

Athletics give the individual student the opportunity to improve his body and mind. He has a chance to be a member of a team and thus develop team spirit. He learns that although winning is very important, sportsmanship is most important. Sports offer the pupil a chance to receive recognition, an essential ingredient in the proper social development of a teenager.

Sports are popular mainly because they are fun. They provide a healthy outlet for the students' energies. Few thrills can equal that exhilarating feeling one gets from winning a close game, or from making a touchdown. The participant experiences the feeling of accomplishment, and the spectator gains pride in his team. Sports, offering the rewards of pride, participation, and enjoyment, are for everyone.

HOMECOMING CELEBRATION CAPS FALL SEASON

Mum was the word until Robert J. Shultz announced the Homecoming Queen and her court during the half-time. They are Beverly Boone, Dee Moore, Sally Ulen (princesses), and Trudy Thrasher (queen).

Hours and hours of work by spirited freshmen resulted in this float which won the prize for the most original entry in the Homecoming competition.

This year Shortridge's Homecoming festivities brought the fall season to a grand climax. Hundreds of man-hours of work went into the thirty-three floats which made up part of the Homecoming parade. The freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes were each represented by floats as were many school clubs. A faculty committee awarded the freshman class float first place for originality, the Student Board float first place for beauty, and the French Club first place for aptness of theme.

Before the game the marching band led the parade from the school to Russel Julius Field. Riding in the parade were the candidates for Homecoming queen and princesses. At the conclusion of the band's half-time show, all the candidates were driven onto the field in convertibles; and the co-chairmen of the Homecoming celebration, Ann McIntire and Jack Zeigler, announced the queen, Trudy Thrasher, and her three princesses, Beverly Boone, Sally Ulen, and Dee Moore.

Following the game Jane Cohn and Greg Silver, co-chairmen of the Homecoming dance, directed the decoration of the gym. Parts of each of the floats were used as decorations to convey the Homecoming spirit. In the evening the queen and her court reigned over the dance as Homecoming came to an end.

Drum Major Bill Broadstreet directs the band as cheerleaders pause and fans stand to sing the school song, "In the Land of Milk and Honey" before the start of the Homecoming football game against Tech.

FOOTBALL TIME SWITCHED

Afternoon football games were new to Shortridge fans this year, and the result was increased attendance.

Ben Davis and Broad Ripple were the only schools to fall to the 1963 Satan gridiron squad during the season. Senior backfieldmen Mike Horner, Bill Beacham, and Ty Bingham guided the team to its 2-7 record. Bingham was named the city's most valuable player by the Kiwanis Club. In addition the Indianapolis News, Star, and Times each placed Ty on their first string all-city teams.

The Satans dropped heartbreakers to city leaders Sacred Heart and Scecina. Homecoming, for the third consecutive year, was against the number one team in the city and the gaiety was lessened by a 33 to 6 setback by Tech.

SHS CROSS-COUNTRY MEN RUN IN MANY MEETS

Turf trembles as the cross-country team pounds through a picturesque portion of the north campus during a fall afternoon workout.

Following a thirty point victory in an early four-team meet, Cross Country Coach Roy Aberson stated, "This was the best meet that any Shortridge team has ever run." In that meet SHS harriers captured six out of the eleven positions and gave local fans a preview of their successful season. This season saw an eight-year-old school record bettered a total of six times by two runners. Pacing the Satans to a city championship, Jerry Upchurch covered the two mile course in 9:57. Chuck Russell had a time of 9:57.1 in the same meet. Later in the season Chuck ran a 9:49.8 time to break the school record. By winning the regional meet he became the first runner in history to complete the two mile Anderson course in less than ten minutes. He bettered the previous record by eight seconds.

Again led by senior Chuck Russell's fifth place finish, team captain Dave Biesmeyer, Jon Roe, John Earp, Rich Harmon, and Ferdie Edwards combined efforts to bring a fourth place finish in the state meet.

Shortridge's 1963-64 Blue Devil basketball team under the new leadership of Kenneth Plantz completed its season with a 15-7 record. Five of those seven losses were to teams rated in the top seven in Indiana.

Playing in his first varsity year and his first year of basketball since being a sophomore, senior Paul Ayers guided the Satans through the latter portion of the season and their short-lived Sectional competition. John Bailey, another senior, led the Shortridge scorers for the season total.

The netters had compiled an impressive 6-1 record going into their game with the then top-rated team in Indiana, Muncie Central. Shortridge's Plantzmen thrilled local fans at Butler fieldhouse as they led the Bearcats by two points at the half and built this lead to six points in the third quarter before the towering Muncie players caught fire and moved away to a deceiving 68-53 victory.

Fate smiled on Shortridge through the first two city tournament games when the Blue Devils squeaked by Arlington and Broad Ripple, each by only one point. The state's fourth-rated Washington outshot Shortridge in the semi-finals and went on to win the city title.

Just two weeks later the Satans were five points ahead of Tech's fifth-rated Titans with four minutes remaining in the game. Then the course of the game suddenly took a rapid turn in the opposite direction, and a possible upset disappeared as Tech went on to a 48-47 victory.

In tuning up for the Sectional tournament, the Blue Devils shot down Broad Ripple's Rockets by twenty-one points. Yet, in a rematch at the Sectionals, that same Ripple team played a tight zone defense and eliminated Shortridge with a 56-49 win.

Paul Dill's wrestlers brought Shortridge its third consecutive sectional championship and sent six of twelve team members on to regional competition. Of these six only senior Tyrus Bingham and junior Earl Price advanced to the state finals where Bingham, wrestling in the 145 pound division, took second place honors. Heavyweight Price finished fourth place in the state.

The Blue Devils opened their season with three victories over Howe, Attucks, and Wood, respectively, but then had to settle for a fourth place tie in the city meet.

Following a 24-14 win over county-champions North Central the wrestlers took the first place trophy at the Kokomo Invitational meet. Melvin Perkins, Ty Bingham, and 1962-63 state champion Bill Beacham were individual winners from Shortridge in the one-point victory.

The Satans found the going rough against the Irish of Cathedral and they fell 36-8. A 32-12 win over Manual brought to an end the dual meets and gave the grapplers an 8-1 record in those meets.

VICTORIES AT BROAD RIPPLE INVITATIONAL,

Victories at the Broad Ripple Invitational, the city meet for the fourth consecutive year, and the sectional meet were highlights of the 1963 track season.

Four school records were broken, and one tied during the successful season. Sprinter Terry Wiseman posted a record-setting time of 9.9 seconds in the 100 yard dash while Jerry Upchurch recorded the state's best as well as a new school record in the 880 with a 1:56.6 performance. Records were broken in both the half-mile and two-mile relays. Obie McKenzie, Larry Hall, Terry Wiseman, and Tyrus Bingham combined efforts for a school record time of 1:35.4 in the half-mile. Paul Shelton, Ron Davenport, Jerry Upchurch, and Dave Biesemeyer turned in an 8:13.1 clocking in the two-mile relay for the fourth record. Tyrus Bingham ran the high-hurdles in 15.2 seconds to tie the Shortridge record.

Five individual cindermen and the 880 relay team closed the season with a fifth place showing in the state meet.

"Softer," directs Robert J. Shultz as Shortridge band director in 1941. Today the whole school benefits from his leadership as principal.

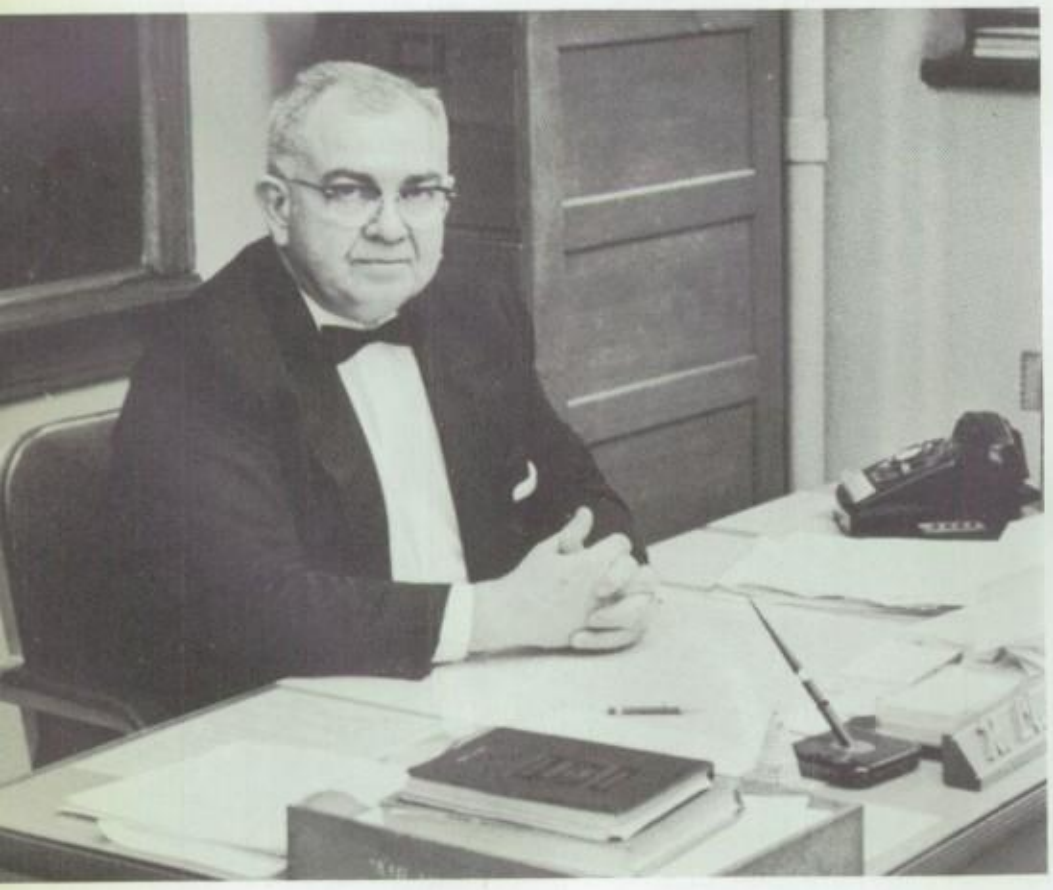
ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF FACULTY

A school is no better than its faculty. No matter how self-explanatory the textbook or how eager the student, no substitute exists for good teaching. A good teacher is dedicated to the task of educating his pupils so that they may someday make their own contribution to society. If he is to help prepare his students for life, he must do more than simply teach the material in the textbook. He must stimulate his students. He must challenge them to exert effort in the sometimes frustrating experience of acquiring an education. The impressionable adolescent mind is easily molded by such a teacher. Under the guidance of the teacher a pupil may become a student and the student, a leader of tomorrow's world.

Shortridge has long had a reputation for producing both outstanding community leaders and students of the highest caliber. No greater tribute can be bestowed on such a dedicated faculty.

Completing his fourth year as principal, Robert J. Shultz can look back proudly on twenty-four years of service to Shortridge.

Completing his sixteenth year of service at Shortridge, vice principal R. Lloyd Green is faced semi-annually with the tremendous task of arranging pupils' schedules.



Balancing the Shortridge financial books is the Herculean labor of vice principal Arthur G. Shull.

Dean of boys Paul Justice and his assistant, Julian Coleman, both veteran Shortridge teachers, served for the first year in their executive positions.

A school is no better than its faculty. No matter how self-explanatory the textbook or how eager the student, no substitute exists for good teaching. A good teacher is dedicated to the task of educating his pupils so that they may someday make their own contribution to society. If he is to help prepare his students for life, he must do more than simply teach the material in the textbook. He must stimulate his students. He must challenge them to exert effort in the sometimes frustrating experience of acquiring an education. The impressionable adolescent mind is easily molded by such a teacher. Under the guidance of the teacher a pupil may become a student and the student, a leader of tomorrow's world.

Shortridge has long had a reputation for producing both outstanding community leaders and students of the highest caliber. No greater tribute can be bestowed on such a dedicated faculty.

With understanding and patience developed in 17 years as Shortridge's dean of girls, Mrs. Eugenia Hayden daily meets the needs of the pupils.

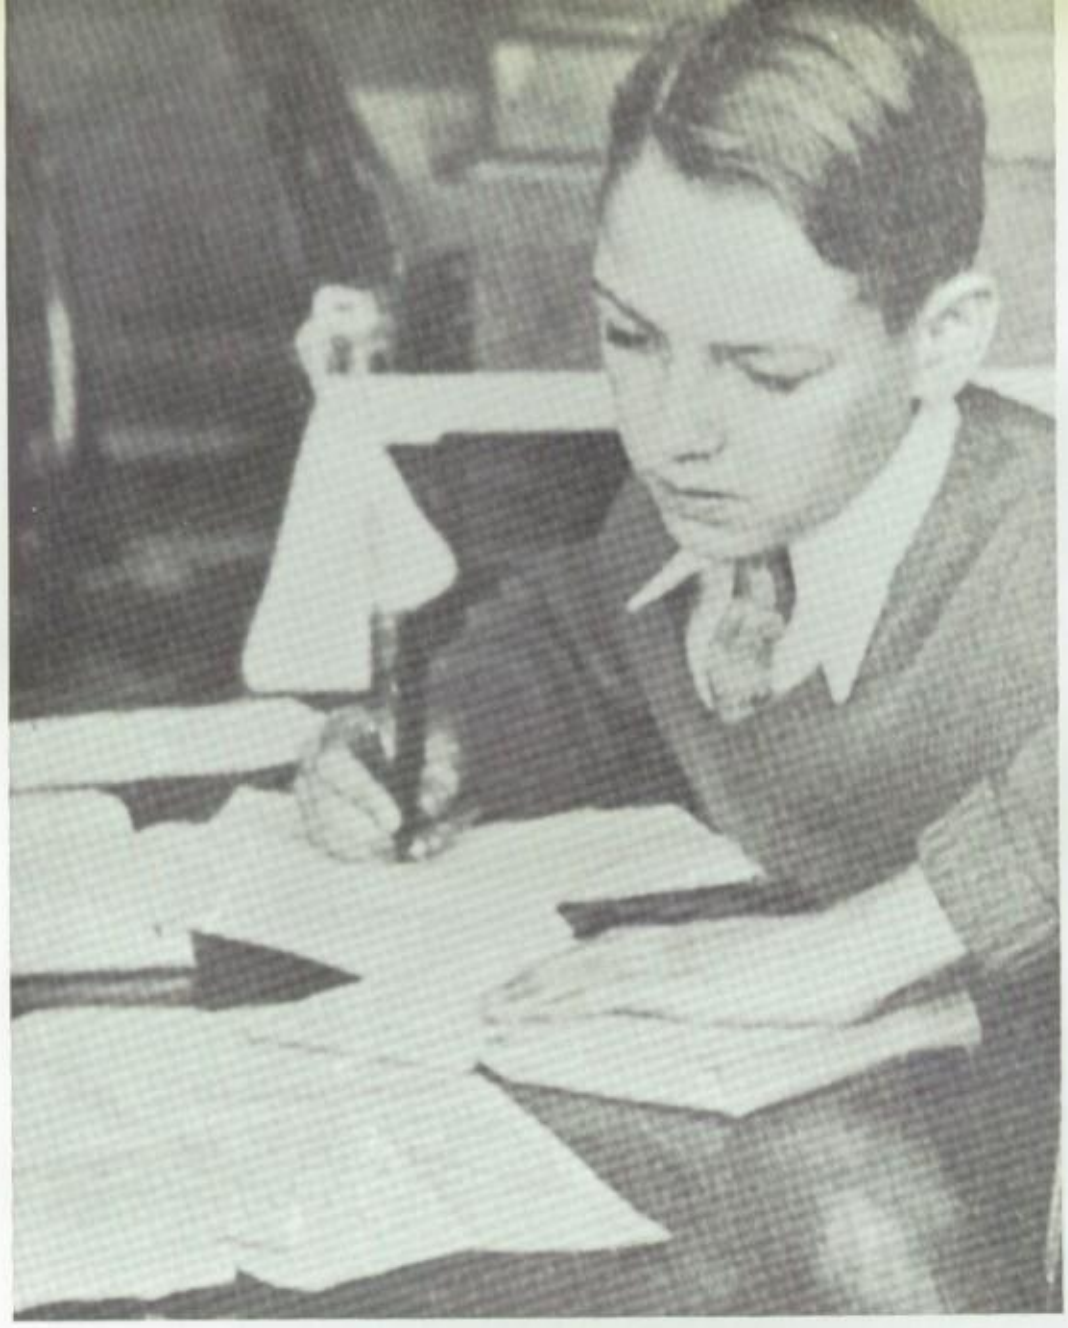
IN MEMORIAM

There was a definite void in the Shortridge faculty and a sadness over the entire school after the death of Perry Ward Holaday on September tenth of last year. Dr. Holaday was a favorite among both teachers and students, combining humor, knowledge, and a dedication to teaching. In the thirty years since he first joined the Shortridge faculty, he had been not only a teacher but also a good friend to his students and fellow teachers.



Except for the tie and white shirt, this member of the class of 1938 could be a freshman of today.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF UNDERCLASSMEN

When Shortridge opened its doors for its one hundredth year, 2,333 students registered. The enrollment has increased almost one hundred times since the first class of twenty-eight pupils was admitted in 1864.

Each year new life is added to Shortridge as the freshmen join the school bringing with them enthusiasm and fresh ideas. They realize their responsibility as Shortridgers and enter into their new way of life eagerly, ready to make their place in the school.

The sophomores, still eager, are beginning to temper enthusiasm with judgment. They join in the school's activities preparing themselves to be upperclassmen and school leaders.

As upper-classmen the juniors show tangible proof of the part they play in Shortridge. They elect officers and a governing body for their class. They write and produce their own Junior Vaudeville and in the spring present the Junior Prom, representing Shortridge in its finest tradition.

This year 2,333 students are doing their part toward maintaining Shortridge. Each works as an individual, as a member of his class, and most important, as a Shortridger.

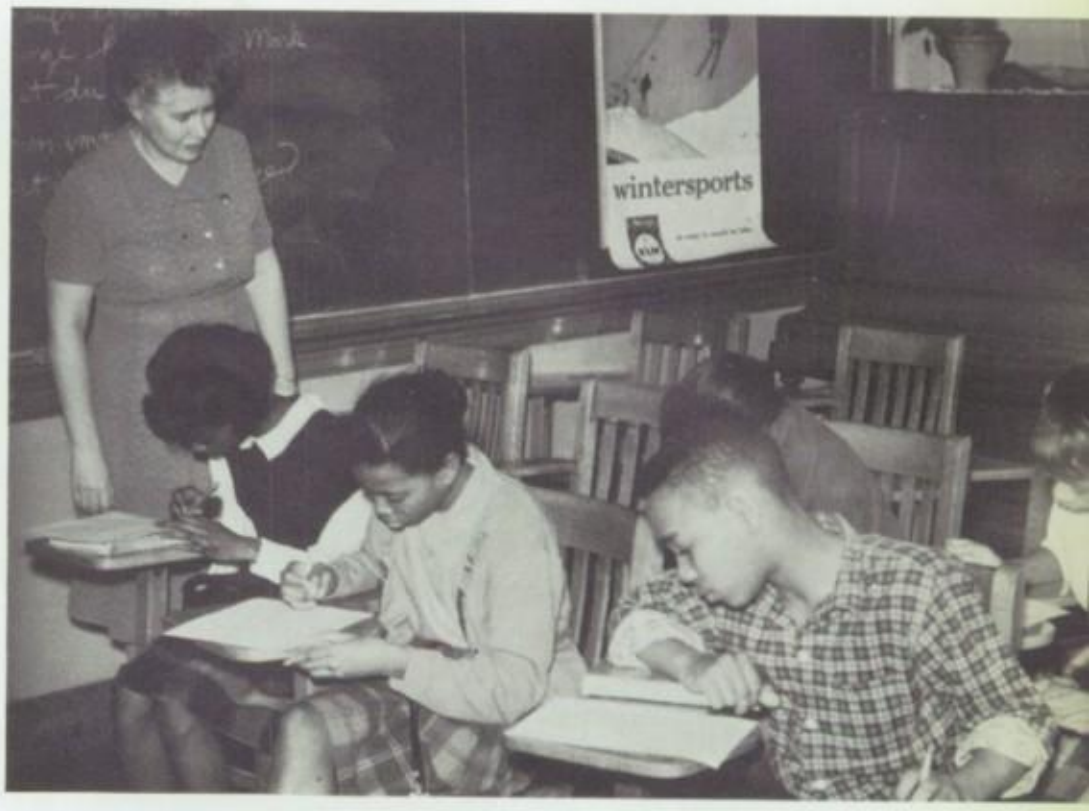
JUNIOR HIGH RUNS AS SCHOOL-WITHIN-SCHOOL

Shortridge's junior high, headed by Fran D. Etheridge, is a school within a school. It is generally independent of the high school, but it does participate in several school activities. The 215 member junior high body has its own football, basketball, and track teams. It occupies the southeast section of the third floor, and the pupils have their own lockers. Junior high pupils participate in school auditoriums and share the facilities of the school cafeteria with the high school students.

Although high school is a new and often frightening experience for most freshmen, the pupils of Shortridge's junior high will have few fears when they enter high school, as they are already veterans of high school life.



Getting a jump on their high school studies, these junior high students study Spanish under Miss Thelma Cooley.

JUNIORS ON THE OTHER HAND . . .

Enjoying one of the most glittering years of their high school career, the juniors of the Class of 1965 were a busy group, continually planning or conducting activities. The election of officers launched the year for the juniors; and the class was quickly organized under the leadership of the new officers, the junior policy committee, and the class sponsor, John Morgan.

Early in the year a pitch-in dinner gave the juniors a chance to organize and become acquainted. Class spirit was high on Junior Day at the football field, and when class rings arrived soon after, fingers seemed to swell with pride. On Junior Sacrifice Day pupils and teachers donated change from their lunch money to go toward a Thanksgiving dinner for needy families.

The new year swept in Vaudeville with its practices, headaches, and performances. The four acts and two intermission acts provided an exciting as well as profitable evening. Then, climaxing the junior year in late May, came the Junior Prom with its queen, parties, dance, picnics, and enough memories to fill a scrapbook.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF SENIORS

The senior has the world in the palm of his hand. He is the big shot of the school. Few problems are too difficult for his experienced mind to solve; life is seldom too complicated. School work is hard, but the senior always manages to have time for the many enjoyable extra-curricular activities that only seniors are privileged to enjoy. What a wonderful life it is!

Graduation night comes, and soon thereafter, the senior's life changes. He emerges into the adult world. Whether he goes on to college, or out into the business world, he will face responsibilities that are new to him.

However, these are not his thoughts. As the senior stands in line for his diploma, he nostalgically recalls the Vaudeville, the prom, and the basketball and football games. These events are all precious memories now. The principal hands him his diploma. Although the senior feels remorseful that the ideal life of the last year is over, he welcomes the challenge of the future as only youth can.

PROM HOURS FLY OVER RAINBOW

Colorful rainbow arches, bluebirds in flight, and pots of gold carried out the theme of "Over the Rainbow" as Shortridgers danced to the music of Al Cobine at the Junior Prom. As is traditional, the Class of 1964 held its prom at the Indiana Roof. Highlighting the thrilling evening was the crowning of Queen Gwen Taylor and the grand march, led by Gwen and the first and second runners-up, Ann McIntire and Trudy Thrasher and their escorts. Carol Schuster and Tom Ulen were co-chairmen for the May 3 dance, a memorable climax to an exciting year.

Seniors think back to their junior prom when Gwen Taylor was queen, and Trudy Thrasher and Ann McIntire were third and second runners-up respectively.

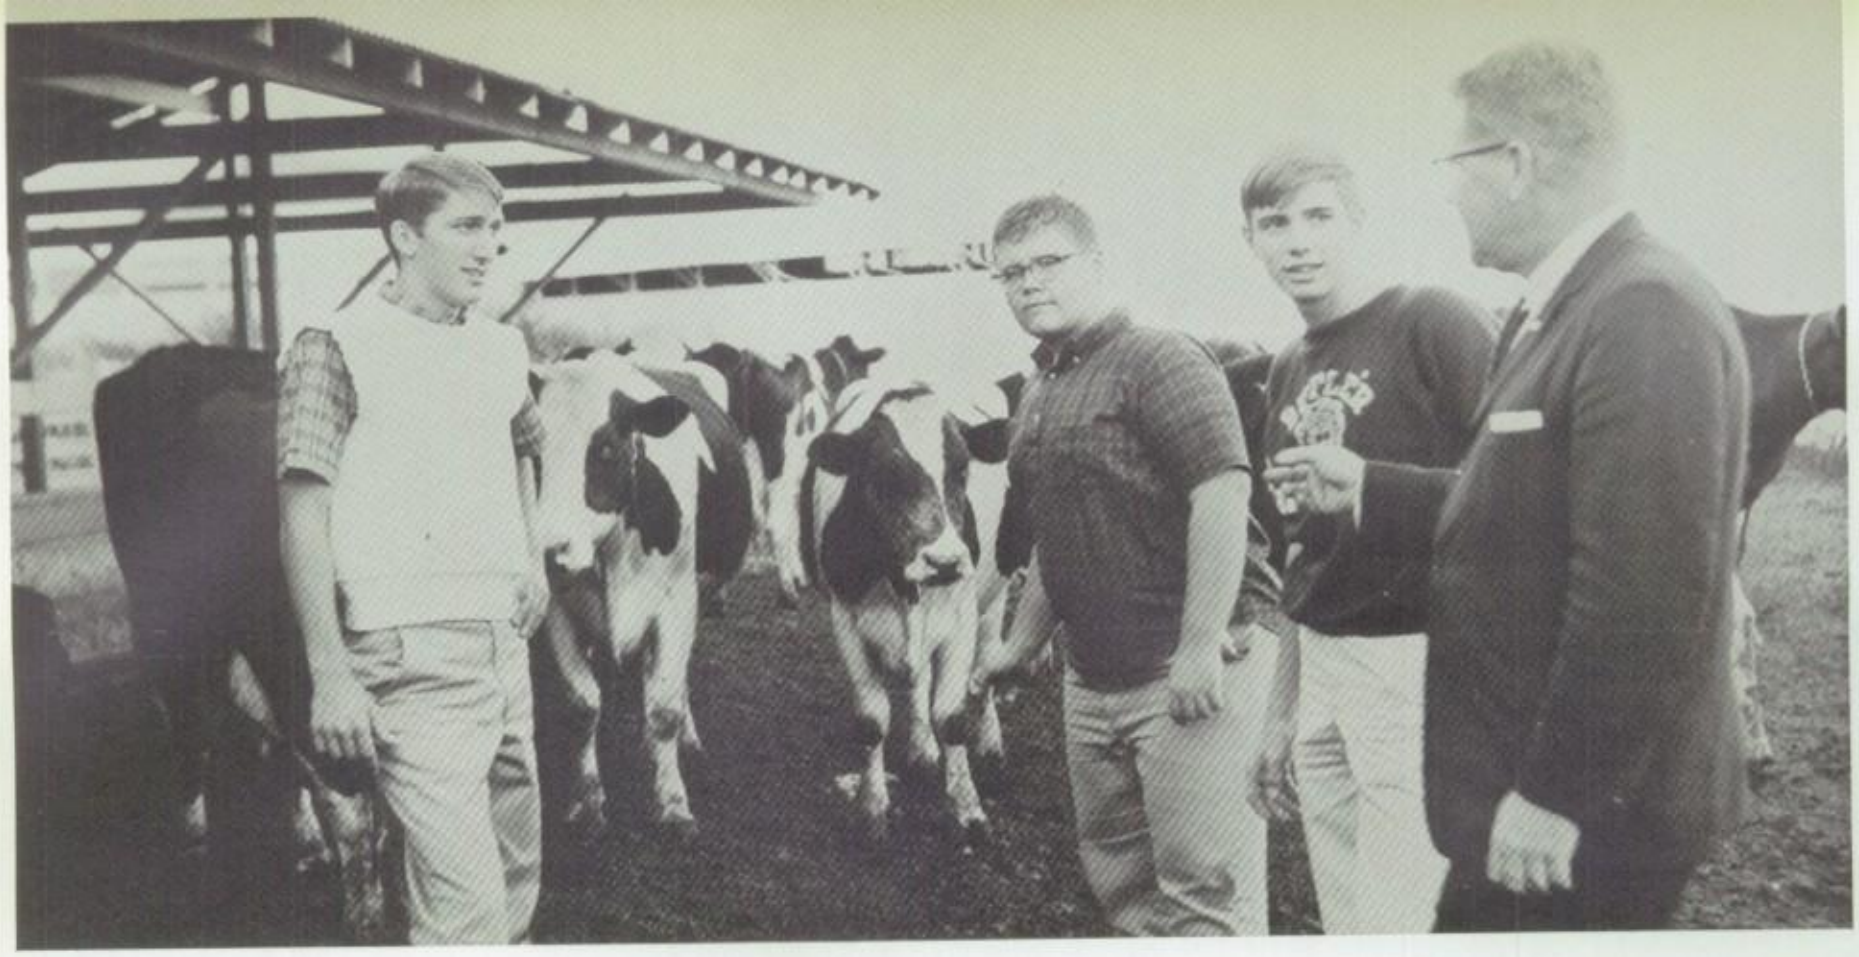
Miss Clara Armstrong, in an advertisement for Vories Business College in the 1899 Annual, demonstrated the business-like look of another century.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF PATRONAGE

Although the spark which brings a school to life must come from the students themselves, great help can be given by friends and businesses of the community. Throughout Shortridge's one hundred year history it has been fortunate to have the loyalty and friendship of some of Indianapolis' outstanding businesses. Their contribution to the school's life often goes unnoticed, but only through their continued interest and support are many Shortridge activities made possible. This help allows increased opportunities in the high school career of every student. By helping to maintain many of the traditions of Shortridge these friends and businesses have played a very real and necessary part which is deserving of recognition. Certainly no monetary value can be placed upon the years of faithful encouragement these firms have given. All Shortridgers owe a debt of gratitude to those who through their past and present support have helped to make this school the great institution it is.



J & E Electric Service, Inc.

1116 W. 30th St.

Howard S. Edwards of the Class of 1938 is telling his son, Steve, Clarke McCance, and Jim Gabriel how houses were heated one hundred years ago. At that time five healthy cows were ample to heat a five room house. Now, however, electric heat is the modern way. J & E Electric Service, Inc. was a pioneer in electric heating in this area and is convinced "Electric heat can't be beat."

L. Strauss & Co.

41 W. Washington and Glendale

From the two major Quad Shops come some of the best dressed scholars. Patsy Towe, Tom Prager, and Steve Power know that for style and the best buys, Strauss at both Glendale and downtown is your best bet.

Collins Oldsmobile, Inc.

2444 W. 16th St.

Classical, stylish, and economical are the words which describe the 1964 Oldsmobile. Mary Glenn Rinne and Joe Ryan favor the new F-85 convertible and all of its sporty features. They also realize that for the lowest deals in town, Collins is the best to be found.

Bo-Ka Florist 110 W. 38th St.

Kenay Pharmacy

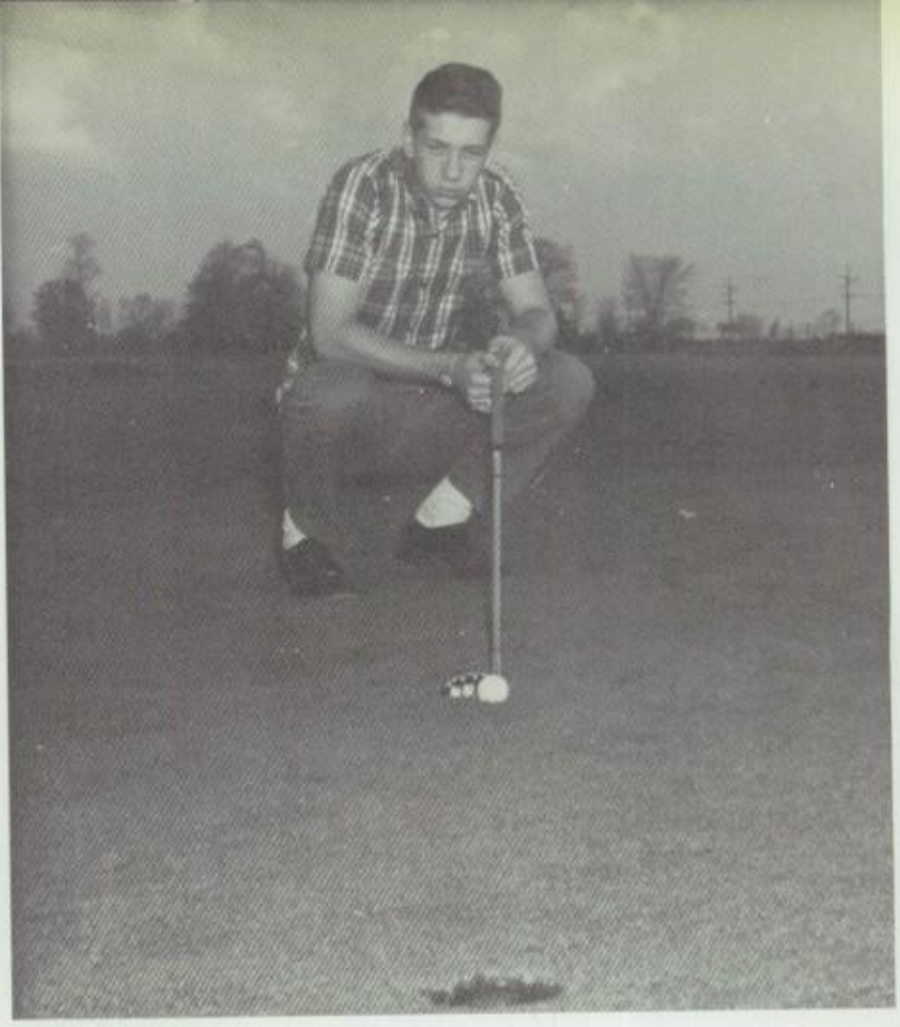
3400 N. Meridian

Susie Huse takes Rozi Oakshott's good advice. Rozi can bet on the fact that quick and courteous service is always available at Kenay Pharmacy, 3400 N. Meridian. No matter how large or small your medical need, you can fill it at Kenay.

Willow Brook Golf Course

4701 N. Keystone

When he sinks this shot, Dan Rees will have finished another round at Willow Brook Golf Course. At Willow Brook every hole is an exciting test of your skill.



Mary Smith Salon

4911 N. Pennsylvania

Chris Steichen regularly patronizes the Mary Smith Salon for the finest in hair styling. Since 1934 Shortridge girls have come to Mary Smith to find the right hairdo for that special occasion. You'll like the convenient location and prompt service.

Thrasher's Sundries Company

Zoom! Trudy Thrasher is off to show Suzy Franklin the various games and clever items at Thrasher's Sundries. The complete stock ranges from hair pins to kitchen pots and pans. Although you can't buy direct, Thrasher's Sundries are in almost every drug store in Indiana.

The Accent Shop

3367 N. Pennsylvania

Carole Earl finds that the Accent Shop has both a variety of exotic decorations, as well as everyday conveniences for a perfect party or "get-together."

Lotus Garden

4424 Allisonville Road

European traveler Ed Maurey admires the beautiful Japanese atmosphere of the Lotus Garden. Although Chinese food is a specialty, all fine American and European dishes are also available. Pleasant surroundings and prompt, courteous service are also items that make the Lotus Garden a fine place to eat.

Steven's Enco Service Station

3757 N. Capitol Ave.

Susie Hardisty and Ellen Derra know that Steven's Enco is the place to go for gas, tires, and a quick tune-up. Everything is of the highest quality at Steven's.

Clifton Wilder Fuel Oil Company
1310 West 29th

Brr, when icicles are hanging during winter, Clifton Wilder provides their customers with continuous home comfort and dependable service. Each customer finds the solution to his heating worries with Clifton Wilder.

Herff-Jones Jewelry Co.

1401 N. Capitol Ave.

Kathy Butt and Sue Lett made a trip to Herff-Jones Jewelry Company to see the new designs in class rings. They decided that Shortridge's rings for the Class of '64 definitely look the best.

Drive into Pilgrim Cleaners and Laundry for every laundry need as well as superb dry cleaning. Jane and Martha Cohn utilize the handy curb and pick up services while Pilgrim Cleaners & Laundry solves their cleaning problems.

Crescent Cleaners

1246 N. Capitol Ave.

You can count on Crescent Cleaners to do excellent dry cleaning and laundry. These Shortridgers, Ann Arthur and Drew Andrews, know exactly what they are doing when they trust their clothing to the expert handling of the employees at Crescent Cleaners.

Gant Bros. Shell Service Station

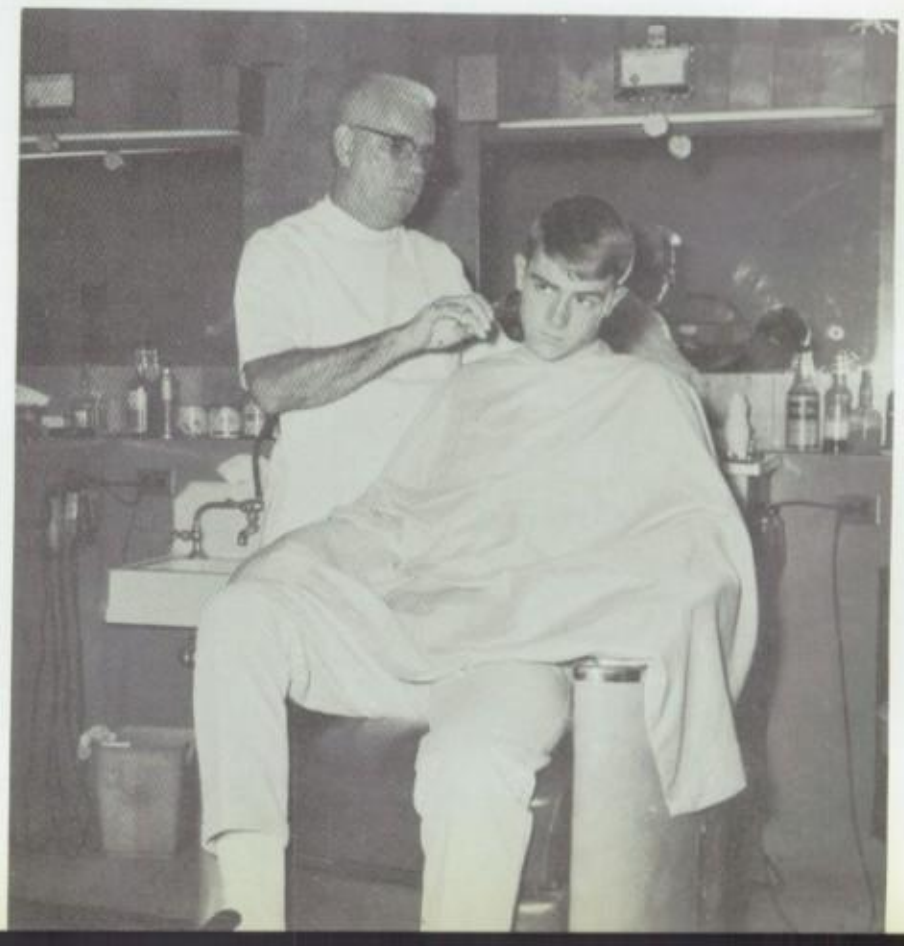
3002 Northwestern Ave.

Frank Phillippi knows that besides offering top professional service, Gant Bros. Shell Station is also the place to get the score of the World Series, the Cotton Bowl, the Rose Bowl, the Sugar Bowl, the Orange Bowl, and all Shortridge athletic events. For the best in gas and gossip drive into Gant Bros. Shell Station.

Peacock Barber Shop

662 E. 38th St.

Phil Kenney always comes to Peacock Barber Shop to "keep trim." He knows that good grooming is a must for the smarter set at Shortridge, and Peacock sets the style.



Hoosier Chrysler and Plymouth, Inc.

3409 N. Illinois

After driving the new 1964 Plymouth Valiant, John Van Dorn and Chris Steichen are sure that the first place they will go for a new car will be Hoosier Chrysler and Plymouth. There they will find style, comfort, and economy in the many models available.

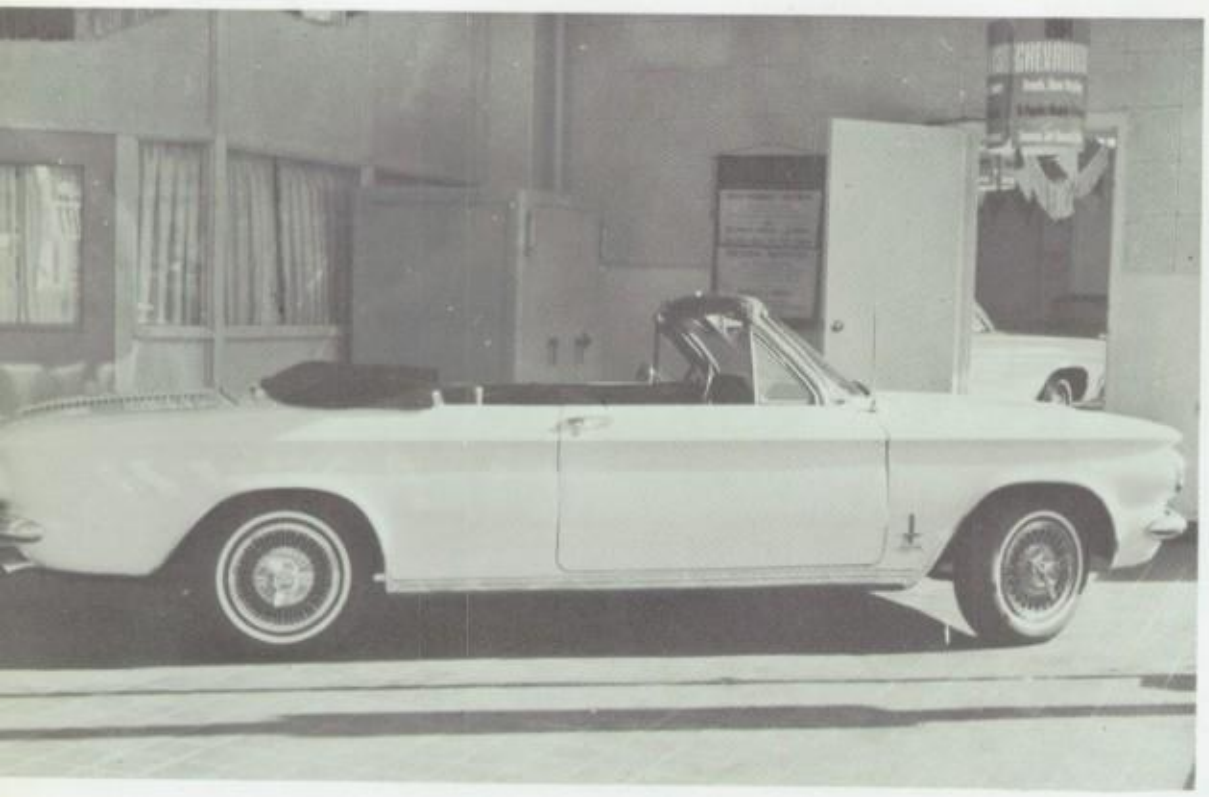
Carriage Estates

6101 N. Keystone Ave.

Taylor's Grocery and Bakery

3760 N. Illinois

Highest quality in foods and bakery goods as well as polite service keeps Taylor's Grocery from being surpassed.



Johnson Chevrolet Co., Inc.

1035 N. Meridian

Just look how that beautiful 1964 Corvair is waiting for some lucky Shortridger to take the wheel! For comfort, luxury, style, and handling ease, there's nothing better than the new 1964 Corvair convertible.

Let's go Chevrolet in '64!

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Many long hours of fun and hard work have gone into making this ANNUAL possible. To name all the people responsible for it would be impossible. Miss Joyce Cunningham, the sponsor and advertising adviser; Mr. Lawrence Bunting, photographer; Mr. Robert J. Shultz, principal; Mr. R. Lloyd Green and Mr. Arthur Shull, vice principals; Mrs. Dorothy Otto, Senior Class sponsor; Mr. James Bradburn, financial adviser; Mr. Erv Ensley, Hollenbeck Press; Mr. Bill Ehrich, Ehrich Studio; Mr. Chuck Mueller, Ropkey Engraving; Mr. Jack Bundy, S. K. Smith Co.; the Shortridge faculty; the many staff members; and my parents have all devoted their time to this book.
